Description:

During the academic years 2022/2023, 2023/2024, and 2024/2025, Andijan State Institute of Foreign Languages (ASIFL) produced a strong pipeline of graduates whose career pathways align with green jobs through language education, translation, and sustainability-oriented communication. Across Bachelor's and Master's programs, a total of 3,979 graduates completed their degrees, and 1,200 graduates were identified as working in green job-related roles.

These green job outcomes are primarily concentrated in programs such as Foreign Language and Literature (English/German/French), Philology and Language Teaching (Russian), Tour Guiding and Interpreting/Translation (English), Comparative Linguistics and Linguistic Translation Studies (English), and Linguistics (English). Graduates contribute to sustainability through:

Teaching and translating sustainability content, including eco-literacy and SDG-linked learning materials;

Supporting eco-awareness campaigns and community outreach, using multilingual communication to expand environmental education;

Translation/interpreting for sustainability reports and climate initiatives, including materials related to environmental policy, green development projects, and institutional sustainability communication;

Eco-tour guiding and responsible tourism services, promoting heritage protection messaging and sustainable visitor practices;

Early-grade environmental literacy, especially through foreign-language instruction in preschool and primary education contexts.
